

Sean Stephenson

Sean, a Master Beekeeper, past chair of Buckinghamshire BKA and the current BBKA Exam Board Moderator has been managing an average of 30 colonies for 20 years. He travels the country with his microscopy equipment running courses for new and experienced microscopists. He also hosts regular workshops at the National Honey Show and the BBKA Spring Convention. For many years, Sean has bred his own queen bees to support the needs of his own colonies as well as the members of his local BKA. He believes that good beekeeping practice starts with recognising and understanding honey bee behaviour.